Britain's Revered Queen At Last On Screen In Glowing,
Life-like Dramatic Romance

"Victoria the Great," Sumptuous Production, Visualizes Career of Empire's Longest Reigning Monarch and Her Heart-Touching Devotion To Her Prince Consort, Albert—With Distinguished Portrayals By Anna Neagle And Anton Walbrook, H. B. Warner And Walter Rilla.

Marsaled as a superb achievement, "Victoria the Great," first production to reach the screen with Britain's famous sovereign as the central figure dramatically visualizes the ardent love between the Queen and Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, against an Impressive background of historical events. Anna Neagle, British screen notable, is co-starred with Anton Walbrook, international star, their respective roles being the Queen and her Consort, Prince Albert. H. B. Warner

The film, made in England by Herbert Wilcox, is absolutely unimpeachable in historical accuracy, and its reproduction of authentic detail. When the censorial ban, dating back for over 100 years, forbidding stage impersonations of any British ruler until a long period after his or her death, was annulled on June 21, 1937, official co-operation furnished the producer with material which was unobtainable

For ten years Wilcox had contemplated the making of this picture, on which intensive research had been directed for several months before the ban was lifted. On the very day the official decree expired, he made announcement of the birth of the film, "Victoria the Great," and was therefore first in the field, much to the chagrin of various showmen who had hoped to anticipate him.

to supply the groundwork of the film, libraries were ransacked, printshops, picture galleries and museums searched. Curiously enough, it transpired that the private diary of the Queen herself provided the most col-original source of incident. It is worth noting that the screen dialogue taken from the latter source is used verbatim. Contemporary records, letters and newspapers of the period contributed their quota to a first-hand reconstruction of the era. From the time-stained files of the vicinity "Thru-dex" preparation is a mixture of relatively common and somewhat dramatic scenes.

like Buckingham Palace, St. James' Palace, Kensington Palace, Windsor Castle, Balmoral Castle, Westminster Abbey, the House of Commons and Convent Garden Opera House lend majesty and impressiveness to the picture, the interiors being studio sets, constructed with exact fidelity to the great originals through exclusive facilities granted by the authorities.

Official Co-operation

Government aid again came in strong as regarded "props" of an unique nature, such as the loan from the Liverpool Museum of the identical train in which Victoria and her husband started off on their honeymoon. The ancient, queer-looking little locomotive travelled from Liverpool to London under its own steam.

A glance through the accounts of the property department reveals the fact that properties collected for the dressing of the film were valued at 50 thousand pounds, ($25,000). Crystal chandeliers and candelabra alone accounted for over $25,000, with pictures and oil paintings responsible for a similar amount.

Almost as valuable as the properties were the costumes used in "Victoria the Great." Forty dresses were designed for Anna Neagle to wear, ranging through levee costumes, Corsets, and a variety of other styles.

All the costumes are authentic to the last degree, being based on the actual dresses of the Queen, preserved in the London Museum, and worn by the Queen in the early days of her reign.

There are fifty-six speaking roles in the picture, and as many of these represent universally known figures. It was important that each individual should be immediately recognizable as the Duke of Wellington, Palmerston, Disraeli, or whatever the role. There were plenty of headcases for both casting director and make-up man, once production started. Names such

Most important of all was the choosing of Anna Neagle to play Vinc toria. Fittingly, the big screen role fell to the actress whose work in "Neil Gwyn" and "Peg of Old Drury" marked her as the ace interpreter of historical feminine characters. Just as apt was the choice of Anton Walbrook for the role of Prince Consort.

This brilliant young actor is of the same age as the Prince Consort's at the opening of the story, has the correct accent, and resembles him strongly in face and build. H. B. Warner, as Victoria's first Prime Minister and mentor, Lord Melbourne, was another vital choice—as was that of Walter

A NEW MAURETANIA IN THE MAKING

The name "Mauretania" is associated with one of the greatest liners ever to be built in British shipyards, and now that she no longer rides the Atlantic waves it is interesting that a new Mauretania is being constructed at Birkenhead. The SNAPSHOT GUILD
TRAIN YOUR EYES TO SEE

Railroad yards may be sooty and ugly but the photographer who trains his eye and his pictorial senses can find beauty there—and in every other common thing.

How many of our Guild members, I wonder, go far afield searching for beauty, in the likeliest places, and do not find it, and cannot understand why?

It is an experience most camera workers have. But, sooner or later, if they are serious workers, they learn a basic principle: that is, that beauty is not so much in the subjects they find as in themselves and the way they look at things.

To put it another way: pictures do not exist in a scene but only in the trained eye that can select and single out that which is interesting and good.

Few persons beginning to use a camera would think of a railroad yard as a place to find beauty. But one photographer has become world-famous for pictures made just there.

He works when the air is crisp, when a locomotive's exhaust steam fumes upward in a great white plume. This steam, contrasting with the black of the engine, forms a focal point in each of his pictures. He selects his viewpoint so that the rails, curving away from the locomotive, are highlighted in long, silvery white lines; lines so arranged that they form his picture's compositional framework. Wherever possible, he includes a framing of dark foliage to give his picture depth and he likes to work when there is mist or fog in the distance so that far-away buildings or figures are reduced to soft, dim outlines.

The objects this photographer works with are not appealing. They are dirty, sooty, ugly. But his pictures are beautiful because he has trained his eyes to see, to select, to arrange, to recognize mood and atmosphere—in brief, by the use of his creative imagination to extract beauty from ugliness.

There is magic in photography like this but it is magic open to all. It calls for no wizard's wand but only thought and feeling and the application of your imagination to commonplace things. Kitchen pots and pans are not pretty but I have seen pictures of a group of them, rhythmically arranged and lighted so their texture was emphasized, that were beautiful. Old shoes are not attractive but I have seen a picture of a pair wet and dripping beside an umbrella in a hall corner, so photographed that they contained all the essence of rainy Autumn.

Fellow Guild member, beauty is not over the next hilltop, down the next road—it is inside you. But you must train yourself to bring it out.

Two choral numbers, one of which will be by the Cornwall school children, will be presented.

A vocal solo by Walter Atkinson and another by Cecil Woodward completes the planned musical part of the program, and a dramatic interpretation will be given by Miss Statten.

HYTHE CURLING RINK PLAYED FRIENDLY GAME

On Monday evening a rink from Hythe, skipped by E. H. Rivers, played a friendly game against C. R. McKay. The game was close and "Mac" had to count both his rocks in the tenth end to make it a tie game, 10 all. On the eleventh end the home rink counted a nice cluster of three, making it practically a sure win, three up coming home. Rivers had no chance to build up a house on the final end, as "Mac" kept the house clean. All that Rivers was able to count was his last rock.

C.G.I.T. and Local Girls' Work Board Express Thanks

The Grande Prairie Canadian Girls in Training and the local Girls' Work Board wish to take this opportunity of expressing their sincere thanks for support and cooperation given them on Finance Campaign Day, Saturday, February 5. The money raised will be sufficient to enable four girls to attend camp through fellowships awarded by the Provincial Girls' Work Board.

The finance campaign is held annually in the province to raise funds to promote religious education. In Alberta alone there are over 4,000 girls in 283 groups who are Canadian Girls in Training. Add to this the numerous Tuxis and Trail Ranger groups for pre-adolescents and one realizes the necessity of funds for maintenance. To this the Grande Prairie girls have given a share of the proceeds of their "tag day." The remainder will be given toward improvement of the local camp site at Lake Saskatoon.

The C. G. I. T. movement is not solely provincial. It is Dominion-wide. The program has been worked out and is promoted by the National Girls' Work Board of the Religious Education Council of Canada. This board is composed of official representatives of the boards responsible for religious education in the Anglican, Baptist, Disciples, Presbyterian and United Church communions and the Y.W.C.A.

It is a program of religious education for girls in early and middle adolescence. It affords them a way of life for the present and for years of maturity.

It has been discovered through experience that a small group of girls can together work out life problems more adequately than any girl alone. The best group to use is the organized Sunday school class meeting for a Sunday and a mid-week session. Under exceptional circumstances a special group comprising girls from different churches may be formed. The Canadian program has been used and adapted for girls in training in Bermuda, Newfoundland, Trinidad, Japan, China and Africa, as well as by several groups in the United States of America.

Couple Return From Honolulu Honeymoon

After a honeymoon trip to mid-Pacific, Mr. and Mrs. Mart Smith of Grande Prairie returned home on Tuesday's train.

A very enjoyable visit to Honolulu in the Hawaiian Islands, was reported by Mr. Smith. They spent nine days in the land of flourishing palms, coconuts and sugar cane, not to mention pineapples. Very few signs of the native inhabitants remained. It was one of the most conspicuous facts about the country itself. In their travels about the island, which could be circled in two hours over the excellent motor roads, only one person was encountered who claimed to be a native.

Although a heavy export of cane products was a flourishing industry, the main business appeared to be in tourist traffic. Several thousand troops were maintained on the island, together with a heavy naval complement and strong fortifications. Mr. and Mrs. Smith saw the 18-seaplane flight to Honolulu while there.

A very smooth sea trip was enjoyed, both to and from the island. While at sea on the return trip they missed the sensation of a light earthquake that struck the island a few hours after they left.

All foliage in bloom and green up and down the coast was quite a pleasant change from the North. Short visits were made at San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Although glad to be home, the couple wished that a few more months could have been spent in the land of trade winds, where they sought summer in January, and found it.

MINUTES OF SOCIAL CLUB MEETING

FLYING SHOT, Feb. 8.—The Social Club met at the home of Mrs. Howe on Wednesday last, ten members being present. The roll call was answered by reading the verse on a valentine card, which was afterwards turned in to the secretary to be sent to the hospital.

The financial statement was given, which shows the funds were at a low ebb, so it was decided to hold a waist drive at the school-house on Friday evening, February 11.

After the business session, Mrs. Jobb took charge and read a paper, entitled "Flaming Youth Cools Off." This paper was very much enjoyed and it was most amusing to watch the expressions on the members' faces as probably memories were recalled. After the reading Mrs. Hugel recited an amusing ditty called "Tex Appeal." The next meeting will be held at the school-house on the first Wednesday in March, at 8:30 p.m. Mrs. Bean and Mrs. Alec Cameron are to be the entertainers. The roll call to be answered by an Irish joke.

After the meeting the hostess served tea, over which a pleasant half hour ensued.
